Peat Fields Helping to Solve Western Fuel Problem

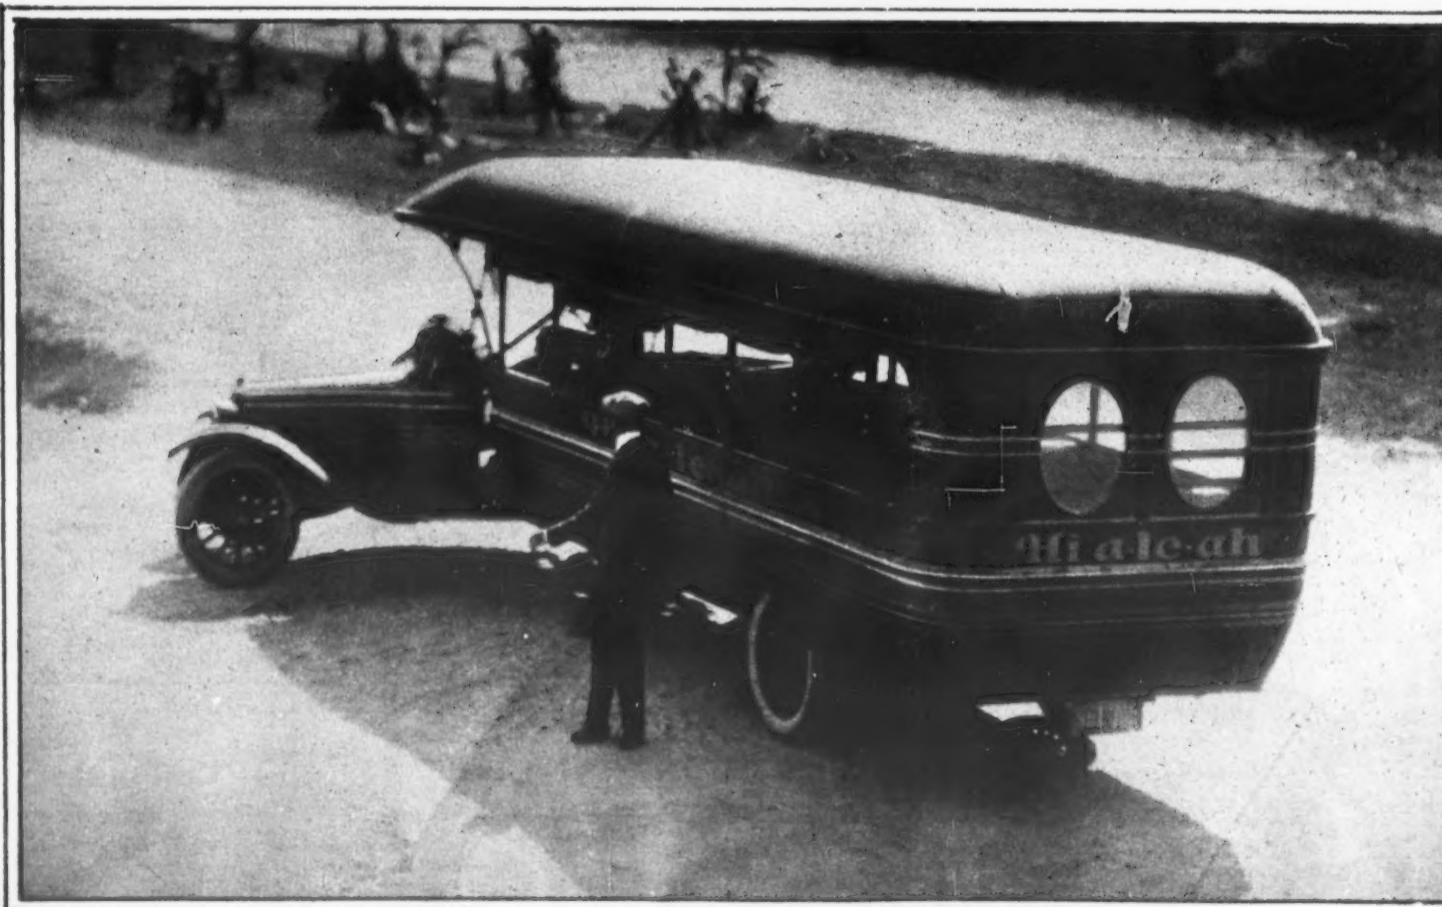

Peat assembled preliminary to drying and screening at the plant at Manito, Mason County, Ill. The peat has been found in great quantities along the Fox and Illinois Rivers, and is being utilized both for fertilizer and fuel. Many plants are being projected for developing the industry.

A NEW industry has been added to the long list of those that have made Illinois one of the most thriving States in the Union by the discovery of rich peat fields along the Fox and Illinois Rivers. It has a twofold value as fertilizer and fuel. It is used in the first instance for enriching the soil of farms, golf links and private estates. Its most important use, however, is as fuel, from lack of which the West has suffered for a number of years past, the scarcity being so pronounced in many cases that farmers have had to burn their corn for fuel purposes. The peat is dug up in long strips for drying. When the moisture content is reduced below 25 per cent, it is ready for burning. The results are more satisfactory, however, when it is ground up and converted into atomized form. Each acre of peat land produces on an average about 1,000 tons. After the peat has been removed the land is still suitable for agricultural purposes. Many plants are springing up to convert the peat into a merchandisable product.

Manito plant for the treatment of peat. This is said to be the largest and best-equipped plant of its kind in the world and has a capacity of 250 tons of raw peat a day. The peat is first dried, then screened.

Aviators Break Endurance Record in Howling Gale

The world's record for sustained flight in a heavier-than-air machine was broken on Dec. 30, when Edward Stinson and Lloyd Bertaud in a Larsen all-metal monoplane at Roosevelt Field, near Mineola, L. I., finished flying consecutively for 26 hours, 19 minutes and 35 seconds. The previous record was 24 hours, 19 minutes and 2 seconds. The feat was the more remarkable as the flight was made in snow, gale and a zero temperature. At right are Stinson, Bertaud and J. M. Larsen, inventor of the plane, the JL-6, which is seen above.

Is it worth while?

WHEN you find that you tire easily, when happiness fails through headache, backache, nervousness—then ask yourself: "Is it worth while to wear harmful shoes?"

Physicians assert that the bad effects of wrongly shaped shoes are far-reaching. The unnatural posture induced by high heels throws the internal organs out of position. Resulting troubles often necessitate operations.

The woman who would be at her best and brightest will wear Cantilever Shoes. Their flexible arches, which conform to the natural action of the foot and allow the muscles free play, enable you to walk or stand correctly with minimum fatigue, and eliminate all danger of weak or fallen arches.

They stimulate—not retard—the circulation which brings to the cheeks a bewitching glow. They do not abuse the nerves which run from the feet up through the body even to the eyes. Knowing that your physical perfection starts with your feet, you can take satisfaction in the thought that your Cantilever Shoes conduce to your health and charm, your youthfulness and joy in living.

Good taste distinguishes every detail of Cantilever Shoes. They exemplify the fact that women and their shoes can be at once sensible and stylish.

If no dealer listed at the left is near you, write the Manufacturers, Morse & Burt Co., 11 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for a Cantilever Shoe Booklet and the address of a near-by dealer.
